

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Sub
A9

To provide a currency control system replete with security functions for currency against theft or the like. A currency control system according to the present invention is characterized by being made up of at least (1) a game-related device
5 (such as a game card vending machine) having a currency holding section which holds currency inserted from outside the device and/or currency to be dispensed out of the device, (2) a portable safe that may be attached to or removed from said game-related device as required and when attached to the game-related device, serves as the currency holding section, and (3) a currency control device (such as a cash control
10 machine) to or from which the portable safe may be attached or removed as required, and when the portable safe is attached, causes said portable safe to hold currency and/or retrieves currency held in the portable safe.